

Hi, I'm Tim Pavlič.

I build the bridge between product & code.

I grew from writing code to leading a development team and managing product — connecting business goals with technical execution, and dev teams with the people actually using what they build. Now I'm looking for my next challenge: I'm open to product, development, or hybrid roles, I love learning new things, and I'm not afraid to dive into the unfamiliar.

ABOUT

From pixels to product strategy.

I'm a Product Manager and developer who's grown from writing code to leading a team of developers and managing product. I bring a somewhat rare combination of hands-on technical ability and product thinking, which means I can bridge the gap between business goals and technical execution.

My focus has always been connecting dev teams with the people actually using what they build — understanding their pain points and delivering smart, functional solutions that make their day-to-day easier. My path started in graphic and UI/UX design, moved through hands-on web development in PHP/Laravel and Next.js, and led me through heading a development team to managing product. I'm now looking for my next challenge. I'm open to product, development, or hybrid roles — I love learning new things and I'm not afraid to dive into the unfamiliar.
